Federal Bonding Policy

Background: In 1966, the U.S. Department of Labor (USDOL) established the Federal Bonding Program (Fidelity Bond) as an employer job-hire incentive that guaranteed the job honesty of at-risk job seekers. Fidelity Bonds are an insurance that businesses purchase commercially that protects the employer in case of any loss of money or property due to employee dishonesty. The bond insurance will insure the employer for any type of stealing by theft, forgery, larceny or embezzlement. Generally, commercially purchased Fidelity Bonds do not cover anyone who has already committed a fraudulent or dishonest act. Ex-offenders and other job applicants with questionable backgrounds are designated as "not bondable". The Federal Bonding Program will issue bonds to employers to cover anyone who is usually "not bondable". As a result, the Federal Bonding Program eliminates this barrier to employment and serves a job placement tool.

Scope: This policy applies to all Workforce Services Division.

Policy:

- The bond will be issued to an employer free-of-charge.
- The Federal Bonding Program does not require an approval process or an employer or employee to complete forms or paperwork to be issued a bond.
- Any at-risk job seeker is eligible for bonding services including: ex-offenders, recovering substance abusers (alcohol or drugs), welfare recipients, persons with poor credit, dishonorably discharged from the military and youth or adults who lack work history.
- Self-employed persons are not eligible for coverage by a Federal Bond.
- Bonding coverage may be issued when all requirements are met:
 - Worker meets Montana's legal age for working;
 - Worker is paid a minimum of Montana's minimum wage; and
 - Federal taxes are automatically deducted from paycheck.
- Federal Bonding Insurance does not cover liability due to poor workmanship, job injuries or work accidents. Federal Bonding is not a contract bond, performance bond or license bond often needed to be self-employed. Additionally, Federal Bonding is not a bail bond or court bond for the legal system.
- Federal Bonds will be issued to an employer for the first 6 months of employment. The bond may be extended an additional 6 months to cover a total of 1 years' employment upon approval of the Program Manager.
- Federal Bonds are typically issued for $5,000 of coverage with no deductible. Larger bond amounts to a maximum of $25,000 may be issued to the employer if the Program Manager determines a larger bond amount is appropriate.

Bonds may be accessed and issued by an employer contacting the Program Manager. The employer must provide the name and social security number of employee to be covered, date of hire, business name and business contact information to initiate the bond.

- In 2015, the U.S. Department of Labor began funding the premium on promotional bonds with the intention to provide an incentive for state agencies to utilize the Federal Bonding Program.
- Workforce Services Division may purchase packages of bonds on an as needed basis using ESA funding. Bonds must be issued to an employer within 24 months to avoid expiration.
